Heidi Newfield is one step closer to realizing her solo career with the announcement that her debut solo album What Am I Waiting For will be released August 5th. Heidi left the trio Trick Pony at the end of 2006 and hasn't looked back. (Cut #4) "Right around January of 2007, my feet hit the ground running after the holidays and I just started writing like crazy and just being patient about rebuilding this whole new thing. And I wanted to find a whole new sound for myself, but still very much be me." Heidi co-wrote six of the ten songs on the album which is co-produced by George Strait's longtime producer Tony Brown. To get ready for the release, Heidi is pretty much touring non-stop this summer. For a complete list of tour dates, visit CMT.com.
